

McKenney's buildingSENSE™

Facility intelligence platform providing round-the-clock visibility of your Building Management System

Information is great. Knowledge is even better. Every facility has an abundance of information that can be gathered, analyzed and leveraged for more energy-efficient operations. But you need to know where to look for it—and more importantly, what to do with it.

McKenney's buildingSENSE™ is a next generation facility intelligence platform that leverages data gathered by building control systems, enterprise platforms, asset management systems and other associated facility management applications.
